No #SaturdaySillies this week while we recover from Rhys Radness!

Instead of getting silly, why not watch @these_thems on YouTube and show your support for this inspiring queer story on social media?

We had so much fun watching this gem of a show earlier this month!

Don't just take our word for it! We were thrilled to have @qplusmag join us during our rewatch earlier this month.

Throughout the series, These Thems expertly tackles a wide range of themes with sensitivity and humor, from queerness and gender identity to coming out and self-expression. With its sharp wit, heartfelt performances, and groundbreaking representation, the show offers a refreshing and much-needed perspective on the LGBTQ+ experience. With well-rounded characters, witty dialogue, and relatable storylines, we consider These Thems a triumph of queer storytelling.

These Thems is a must-watch for anyone craving authentic and insightful LGBTQ+ representation. With its humor, big heart, and humanity, the series reminds us that love, acceptance, and self-expression are universal experiences that transcend labels and boundaries. So do yourself a favor and dive into the world of These Thems – you won't be disappointed.

== Love Notes ==

Can I just say how fun the tag games are? Idk, it's nice to just get to interact with you all on a goofy personal level. I love music recommendations, and I love piccrew stuff and gif parties, just it's such a lovely way to interact with everyone. Thank you all for being so sweet and keeping our little communities spirits up. It's helping keep me grounded.

Also thank you to all you lovely folks who keep going into asks and sending love to everyone. I can't tell you how amazing it is to see so many people reaching out to each other and sending love. I know it's never really been only about the show, but when I see those things, it feels like all that love transcends ofmd and what it's done for us.

It helps me feel like we're all still here. We haven't run back to our old lives, we met each other on the beach and we're all keeping each other company on the way to something new. I'm just, really grateful to you all for that. Just thank you. You mean the world to me, and I know so many feel the same.
