look, sleuths ♡, this is not (only) about putting our little red noses on, it's about finding light in the darkness, something that's as elusive as it is important, so don't listen to the naysayers.

(but also a little red nose is the given accessory to a little pink flag)

== Love Notes ==

Hey lovelies. Happy weekend! I really truly hope you all had a wonderful time and got some relaxation this weekend. As you can tell, people are back to clowning and honking, and I can't tell you how happy it makes me to see it.

I know a lot of people are worried about getting their heart broken again-- it's okay to not want to throw your whole self into honking right now. We get it. If you do feel up for it, and want to, please do, it's invigorating, and restorative, and there's nothing wrong with hope (and if you're not ready, that's okay too).

Hope is what keeps us going every day. Hope for a better tomorrow, hope for a kindness, hope that others circumstances improve-- hope that one day our circumstances will change, or if we are happy with the ones we have, that they'll never change.

Hope, and love are so important in this world. This world can feel so heavy some days, I know it's felt a lot heavier lately for so many. Please know that you're allowed to hope, and allowed to dream, and allowed to feel joy and hope even when others don't have it.

Remember to be kind lovelies, to yourself, and to others. We're all out here doing our best, and I truly hope things are heading in a good direction for you. You can do this. Lastly is a goofy, but appropriate graphic by KatieAbey. You are so powerful m'dears, more than you will ever know.
