Ruibo send some lovely words again.

There is profound difference between humility borne from the egoic desire to self-sacrifice, versus humility borne from the organic embodiment of our own inner power.

The former is forced, while the latter is earned through commitment to shedding all that we are not. We are stepping into an era where one's own genuine appreciation and love of the self - in all iterations of vulnerability and imperfection - will unerringly reign supreme. We cannot fill from empty cups. Congratulate yourself for all the reincarnations of self you have survived and lived to share. Make art about the battles you fought in the voids between rebirths. The entire universe's future rests in your singular perspective, voice, and awareness. I love you.

Remember to take some time for you today lovelies. This is short because I'm taking a bit of that advice as well. Go get some rest, have some fun, feel some grass under your toes, and drink some cool crisp water. You deserve some time for you <3
