The anonymous winner of the Con O'Neill recording was absolutely amazing and shared the donation with the fandom! You can listen to the recording below. Thank you Anonymous Crewmate <3

What a beautiful thing you've all done.

Hundreds of you gave your time and work or promised hope to strangers with your donations.

So many more of you spread the word making sure as many people as possible could take part in all this. And in the end more than 70% of what was raised was from crafted goods or commissioned artwork, from this community and by this community.

You all saw a need for a light in the darkness and without hesitation you chose to shine brilliantly.

It's not the first time you've done it. This time the light looked like needlework, and jewelry, and maybe a half a pyramid here or there. But sometimes it looks like a drag show, a live stream or a zine for charity. Sometimes it looks like a bit of artwork in exchange for proof of donation, or just a call to action. Sometimes it's a signal boost or giving someone else in our fandom a helping hand.

There's a lot of darkness around us. Sometimes it can feel overwhelming, but you all know how to make your own light. And what's more, you're always willing to share it with others.

So, to the moderators, to everyone who made things shared links or donated, and to everyone who's ever been a part of this sort of thing in the past, please know, you all make the world a little brighter. Better. More loving. Thank you so much. I love fooking love this crew.

Hey crew! Looks like the folks who ran the Craft Fair could use some help with putting together the rest of the cost of shipping for all the winners. If you have a few dollars to spare, they'd love your help meeting that need! <https://ko-fi.com/ghostalservice>

A social media post on a dark background. At the top left is a small circular profile picture of a woman. To its right, the text reads: "KL! 🌈👻 @momebie.bsky.social · 2h". Below this is a paragraph: "Hey guys! The #OFMDCraftFair is just about over, but we still need help! @ghostalservice.bsky.social is working hard to help crafters who need their shipping reimbursed, but we're a few hundred dollars short. If you've been looking for a way to help, this is it!". Underneath is a link: "ko-fi.com/ghostalservice". The main part of the post is a blue rectangular graphic. On the left side of this graphic, the text "Support Lis <3 on Ko-fi" is written in white. To the right of this text is a circular white profile picture of a man with glasses and a smile. == Fan Spotlight ==

The first up on the Fan Spotlight for the OFMD Craft fair is the absolute legend @mossgroves!

She was so incredibly kind to donate this amazing Painting of our boys! If you aren't familiar with Moss's work, please take a moment to check out her incredible art here on their linktr.ee!

Her work is one of the first fanarts I'd seen in this fandom and it really blew me away and peaked my interest in OFMD!

= Jillian S =

Another one of our dear crewmates, @jilliansauers makes beautiful ornaments and necklaces (I have one of her Messages In A Bottle and it's awesome!!) She donated these two wonderful pieces to the Craft Fair!

Also in case you didn't know-- Jillian also does such amazing things for this fandom day to day (she helps keep track of the donations we've made as a fandom, reaches out to everyone and sends love, is always keeping an eye out for new cast members on the various platforms, and so much more)-- she's a treasure!

You can find Jillian over on Bluesky!

== Love Notes ==

Hey lovelies. I know this week has been a bit of an emotional roller coaster! The 3 year anniversary of OFMD was on 03/03 and then the 1 year anniversary of David telling us 'officially' there was no renewal was on 03/07.

I remember that day really well. I remember crying at my desk for hours while I tried to work. I remember streaming OFMD with several crewmates trying to find some semblance of calm. It's hard to believe it's been a whole year.

The renewal campaign efforts were so intense those first few months, and then David's message hit us all like a ton of bricks. But you know what? You all still kept showing up.

Whether it was for renewal efforts, menacing WB execs, supporting your fellow crew financially or emotionally, raising money for marginalized groups, for cast & crew in their continued endeavors-- you kept showing up.

That's what community is. We show up for each other.

I know the craft fair has been a big topic for several weeks now, and I'm loving every ounce of it because look at what it's done. Over $100,000 for trans youth, our sibs that are currently being targeted by so many people in the US and across the world.

I know we can't afford to spend that much money all the time, but it's so incredibly inspiring what you all can do when you band together.

Please never forget the power you have, individually, but especially as a crew, as a community. We rally together so well because this crew is kind and loving and even when we have our inter-fandom squabbles, we still come together when things are most important and make magic happen.

I hope you know how proud we all are of you lovelies. I hope you all are proud of yourselves for the immense impact you made on so many lives, just by being kind.

Rest well, remember to hydrate, and take some time for you.
